In 2006, at the behest of Bernard Arnault, the LVMH group created the Fondation Louis Vuitton. Designed by the American architect Frank Gehry, it falls in line with the Groups' efforts to promote art and culture over the last 20 years. A private cultural initiative, the Fondation Louis Vuitton's aim is to promote and support contemporary artistic creation for a wide French and international audience.

This great architectural exploit has already taken its place among the iconic works of 21st-century architecture.

The collection comprises a constantly evolving body of works that naturally falls into four categories: Contemplative, Pop, Expressionist, Music & Sound. Since the Fondation opened, 268 pieces by 102 artists have been displayed.

From February 24th 2021, the Fondation is devoting an exhibition to the collection of the Morozov brothers, Mikhail Abramovich and Ivan Abramovich, two Russian patrons and collectors. A retrospective imagined in partnership with the State Hermitage Museum in St. Petersburg, the Pushkin State Museum of Fine Arts and the State Tretyakov Gallery in Moscow.

A beautiful collection of modern French and Russian art, brought together at the beginning of the 20th century, including many paintings by great masters, such as Renoir, Picasso, Monet or Matisse.

DAY 3

3 Michelin Experience*

Group divided in 3 restaurants

Dinner at Le Pavillon Ledoyen Chef Yannick Alléno

Ideally located on the world's most beautiful avenue and just a step away from the Place de la Concorde and the Grand Palais, the Pavillon Ledoyen will welcome you in the heart of Paris.

A place for celebration where each event becomes a unique occasion. A house where you will be welcomed, as if at your own home, with kindness, sincerity and attention.

Elegance and conviviality are keywords in this house of chefs which, for more than two centuries, has set the decor to the most beautiful events.

Multi-starred chef Yannick Alléno advocates a French cuisine which draws its strength from a strong heritage but is also ambitious in its creativity. He has developed a visionary approach to the culinary arts in which know-how and excellence are combined with audacity and pushes boundaries to better experience new flavors and exalt tastes.

Dinner at Guy Savoy

Restaurant Guy Savoy, ranked amongst the very best in every gastronomic guide, is situated in Monnaie de Paris, spread across six 18th century salons offering views onto the Seine, the Louvre, the Pont Neuf and the Institut de France.

Here architect Jean-Michel Wilmotte imagined a setting both restrained and contemporary, where works of art stoke the fires of modernity and where the dining table becomes a veritable theatrical stage, focusing and capturing light.

Guy Savoy's dining room is one of conviviality, warmth and impeccable service, where the cuisine expresses the sensitivity of a chef wholly at ease in this modern era. As Guy Savoy puts it, "Cuisine is the art of instantly transforming produce rich with history into joy."

DAY 3

3 Michelin Experience*

Group divided in 3 restaurants

Dinner at Le Pré Catelan Chef Frédéric Anton

When walking inside the restaurant, you will be amazed by how interior architect Pierre Yves Rochon has created a stunningly modern concept in touch with its environment while preserving the elegance and rich history of the house.

Opened in 1856, Le Pré Catelan quickly became a resounding success: its bucolic site, the quality of the orchestras and the refinement of the parties made it one of the most popular places in the capital.

In 2007, thanks to the talents of Chef Frederic Anton, the restaurant of Le Pré Catelan received 3 stars in the Michelin Guide. In fact, Chef Frederic Anton is driven by a passion for cooking and an immoderate taste for quality and beauty. His cuisine is a 'cuisine d'auteur', complex without being complicated, brilliant but not demonstrative.

Premier Grand Cru Classé, Saint-Émilion Appellation

There are some exceptional wines in the world. Cheval Blanc is one of them. Its unique terroir and the unusual proportion of Cabernet Franc, combined with Merlot, gives Cheval Blanc a unique and timeless identity, producing a wine which has the capacity to be good at any age. People sometimes speak of absolute art when referring to it.

The single sweep of the Cheval Blanc vineyard assumed its final form in 1871. The wine obtained premier Grand Cru classé classification in 1954, a supreme distinction that has since been regularly confirmed in every decade. Bernard Arnault and Baron Frère acquired the estate in 1998, bringing a breath of elegant modernity and new vitality.

The parcels of vines, tended like a Japanese garden, are planted with two varieties, Merlot and Cabernet Franc. Cheval Blanc may justifiably be regarded as Haute Culture applied to wine.

DINNER IN BORDEAUX Days 5 & 6

Dinner at Le Chapon Fin

From the first hours of the twentieth century, the Chapon Fin was a must-go, where all world artists, leaders, and politics (Toulouse Lautrec, Sarah Bernhard, Aristide Briand, Alfonso XIII, Clemenceau, Poincaré ...) found themselves and had their habits.

Be amazed by the incredible scenery of Le Chapon Fin, and by the inventive cuisine of its young chef, Cédric Bobinet, who sources the best produce of the Southwest gastronomy.

The restaurant will be fully privatized for your group and is located within the city centre, just 5 minutes away from your hotel.

Le Gabriel, founded in 2009, was acquired at the beginning of 2019 by Château Angélys. It thus passed into the hands of a family who are deeply attached to the region and its prestige –the de Boüard de Laforest.

After the purchase of Le Logis de la Cadène in Saint-Émilion in 2013, it was only natural that Bordeaux, the capital of gastronomy and great wines, should be where Stéphanie de Boüard-Rivoal continued the diversification and development of the family's activities in the fine-dining sector.

DINNER IN BORDEAUX Days 7 & 8

Dinner at Le Pressoir D'argent (2* Michelin)

Gordon Ramsay's Michelin-starred restaurant can be defined as a masterpiece, an ageless landmark of excellence reflecting the talent of its chef.

The name of the restaurant derives from the extremely rare presence of a solid silver lobster press in the dining room—one of only five in the world. It was made by the house of Christofle, and watching it in action brings home to you how astonishing creative cooking can be: it is an art where flavour is refined down to the minutest detail.

The menu will be composed of a selection of dishes tactfully influenced by the cooking of Aquitaine which is famous as much for its cuisine as for its wines.

Restaurant privatized for your group (50 people)
